

(12) THE BOHL HOUSE

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawton Stone

This home, recently restored by its present owners, is typical of the Alsatian archetype in the 19th century. It still has the original floors and fireplace in the living room. Of interest is the recently uncovered fireplace in the kitchen area at the back of the house.

The ladder and staircase visible from the glassed-in porch lead to the attic and are unique in design. A view into the attic reveals the initial construction of the roof.

On display in the house are many items of great historical interest which it will be well worth your time to see.
